CAPITAL AWAITS ILLINOIS VOTE ON BORAH, KNOX

Will Mark First Man-to-Man Contest In Pre-Convention Drive

STATE CLAIMED BY BOTH CANDIDATES

Gov. Alf Landon, Meanwhile, Picks Up Support In Minnesota

(By Associated Press) — The Landon-for-president movement hailed renewed evidences of support in a midwest sector today while Senator Borah and Col. Frank Knox made final plans for Tuesdays Illinois primary—the first man-to-man contest in the pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Gov. Alf M. Landon, Kansas Republican, who has remained silent on the question of candidacy while supporting for many months have been rounding up convention votes for him, yesterday won additional backing in Minnesota.

More Aid For Landon

Sentiment for Landon predominated as seven district conventions picked 14 uncommitted delegates to the Republican national convention. The results, along with delegate selections previously made, assured Landon at least 12 of Minnesota's 22 votes.

Observers in St. Paul indicated that four delegates-at-large, yet to be picked, would be friendly to Landon.

Borah, fresh from a preferential primary victory over an uncommitted slate in Wisconsin, where he captured 21 of the 24 votes, was jubilant as he plunged into a four-day campaign before the Illinois balloting.

Both he and Knox claim Illinois. Knox, who has the endorsement of the state central committee, has just completed a statewide drive.

Support For Knox

Knox last night was given definite assurance of support from eight of the 11 delegates from New Hampshire. Although the delegates were elected last month as unpledged, they were in favor of Knox. After a conference at Concord, they agreed to back him. The other delegates, absent from the meeting, were expected to concur.

With President Roosevelt on his way back toward the capital, the capital looked to him for a possible pronouncement bearing on the coming campaign. The chief executive has a speaking engagement in Baltimore Monday but he has not announced his subject.

FIRE DESTROYS FALLEN LINER

Instruments Removed; 4 Investigation Are Under Way

(By Associated Press)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 9.—Workmen went up on high Chestnut ridge today to touch off a giant bonfire which will consume the last of the luxury liner Sun Racer, whose crash on the fog-shrouded mountain took 11 lives.

William Cunningham, chief of the Pennsylvania Aeronautical bureau, commanded the crew piling in one big heap the shredded fabric, broken wood and bent metal of the ship.

The broken instruments and other parts of the shattered liner which may be needed in the investigation were removed yesterday.

Fire which broke out after the disaster Tuesday morning consumed part of the nine-ton Pittsburgh-bound TWA liner which tore through 200 yards of brush after it crashed 50 miles off its course.

While Cunningham went ahead with his task, four department of commerce representatives assembled for an open hearing on the crash, from which only three persons escaped alive.

Dennis Mulligan, an attorney attached to the department, was in charge. Among the witnesses will be Mr. and Mrs. Ray Addis, from whose Forest home the plane hostess, Nellie Granger, first telephoned word of the wreck.

Others will include mountain residents assisted in the early rescue efforts. Technical evidence

Blames Gambling For Home Bombing

CLEVELAND, April 9.—Monroe F. Rubin, owner of radio station WJAY, blamed organized gambling interests today for the midnight bombing of his home.

He said he received threats after the radio station's "ghost reporter" broadcast names and locations of persons and places who he said were engaged in racing and slot machine gambling.

Rubin called off the crusade today and ordered the "ghost reporter" discharged. Three persons were engaged in collecting and broadcasting material for this feature.

The bomb shattered his front porch and a score of windows.

"We are not in the reform business any more," Rubin said today.

BRICKER OPENS PROBE OF VOTE FUND REPORTS

Hits Campaign Solicitation from Civil Service Employees

PROSECUTORS IN OHIO GET ORDERS

Attorney General Hears Democratic Organization Seeks Funds

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, April 9.—The attorney general's office began a sweeping inquiry today of reports that the Democratic organization was soliciting campaign contributions from civil service employees.

Attorney General John W. Bricker, a Republican, asked the state civil service commission to make an immediate investigation of reports of "flagrant" violations of the civil service laws.

Prosecutors Get Orders

He sent to the prosecuting attorneys of Ohio's 88 counties instructions to take prompt action to prosecute solicitors of funds from employees under civil service.

Bricker asserted that if the civil service commission fails to act he will institute proceedings if any evidence of violations is submitted directly to him.

Reports have been current about state offices for the past two weeks that state employees had been asked to contribute two per cent of their pay for a primary Democratic campaign fund and another two per cent for the general election in November.

Democratic organization officials were not available immediately for comment on Bricker's action.

Prohibited By Law

"My attention has been called to reports that officers and employees of various state departments have been solicited contributions for political purposes from classified civil service employees," Bricker said in a letter to the commission.

"Such conduct is expressly prohibited by law and it is a misdemeanor for any persons, either in the classified service or outside the classified service, to solicit directly or indirectly contributions from a person in the classified civil service of the state for the benefit of a political party."

A penalty of a fine ranging from $50 to $500 or six months in jail, or both, are provided for violations of the statute.

YOUTHS PERISH IN PLANE CRASH

Hamilton Airport Manager and Passenger Are Victims

(By Associated Press)

HAMILTON, April 9.—A young airport manager and his passenger were killed when their small two-seater open cockpit plane crashed on a farm near here, and today investigators sought to determine the cause.

Elmer Treiber, 28, manager of the North Hamilton field, and Frederick Sherer, 19, were the victims. Treiber died enroute to a hospital and Sherer succumbed two hours later.

Both suffered fractures of the skull and other injuries, and neither was able to talk.

Describes Death Plunge

L. P. Root, operator of a filling station near the accident scene, near Seven Mile, a few miles north of this city, said the motor of the plane (an Aeronca) apparently was functioning properly as the men circled his place of business.

Suddenly, he said, the ship "started down," then "went into a steep bank," virtually diving to the ground.

Coroner E. E. Cook and Deputy Sheriff Mark Durr, who investigated, said the plane apparently went into a spin and that it struck first on one side of a road, then bounced across the highway, through a fence and into a field on the

Baltimore Mayor's Home Bombed While He Reclines In Bed

THE RECLINE, April 9.—The home of Mayor Howard W. Jackson was bombed here early today, in what was believed to have been a direct attempt on the mayor's life.

The explosive, which police said apparently was thrown from a passing automobile, landed on the ground about ten feet from the house. Mayor Jackson was sitting in bed reading when the blast broke out cellar windows and filled his room with acrid fumes. He said he had retired for the night only five minutes previously.

A police guard was thrown about the Jackson home immediately, and officers are assigned to patrol the nearby streets. Neither Mayor Jackson nor investigating officers could give any reason for the act.

Also in the house at the time were Mrs. Jackson, a daughter, Virginia; William Shehan, his grandson, and two servants.

The only damage, police said, were the broken windows and a foot-deep hole in the lawn.

Twenty or More Will Be Called In "Confession" Investigation

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—Regular Townsend forces mobilized today for a counter-attack against insurgents in Los Angeles, while the old age pension organization in Oregon underwent a drastic shake-up.

George C. Highley, deposed president of Los Angeles club 93, whose 20,000 membership is the largest in the national Townsend movement, faced opposition to his daily noon meetings in which he is leading a separate old age pension drive.

As a "counter-attraction" meetings at the same hour were scheduled by Hal M. Siemon, acting regional Townsend director for 11 states. Siemon declared club 93 officially outlawed and denied 1,800 persons who cheered Highley's "bolt" were representative of the movement.

Postmaster General James Farley was accused of instigating dissension in Townsend ranks as election strategy in a statement from Russell Hand, Townsend district manager.

LEAKING OUT

An important point of administrative procedure has been developed by Sen. Vandenberg's investigation of large AAA benefit payments. If Secretary of Agriculture Wallace didn't know it before, he knows now that a show of reluctance to reveal information belonging to the public inevitably is construed as evidence of desire to hide something. Information which "leaks" out excites suspicion.

The fact of the matter is that no person familiar with the procedure of making AAA benefit payments had any reason to be surprised by the fact that some of the payments were very large. Certain corporations which agreed to curtail production of sugar cane, wheat, hogs, tobacco, rice and sugar beets drew benefit checks in proportion to their vast operations in those commodities. That was inevitable, since the same basis was used for all payments in the same classifications.

The AAA did not go outside its powers to make large payments, nor did the beneficiaries do anything less in proportion than hundreds of thousands of smaller agricultural operators did to comply with the government's program of restriction. Yet, disclosure of AAA payments as high as a million dollars in at least two cases is undoubtedly damaging to the Roosevelt administration's popularity. Farmers who received small payments may be expected to question the propriety of sharing AAA benefits with huge agricultural corporations whose management is identified more closely with finances than with agriculture.

The shock of the disclosure could have been averted by voluntary publication of large payments by the AAA before an inquisitive member of congress seized a ready-made opportunity to embarrass the administration. Mr. Wallace, by his seeming reluctance to open AAA records for the scrutiny of the public, has added distrust needlessly to a part of the new deal already abandoned as unconstitutional. The tragedy is that the same Mr. Wallace, apparently sensing danger, now promises to do willingly what should have been done without any fuss and bother.

WHY HURRY?

The Ohio senate's new research committee investigating unemployment insurance has begun hearings in an atmosphere of hurry and pressure wholly out of keeping with the nature of the problem under examination. There is no reason for haste, except the desire of certain groups to do quickly a thing which, if it were done slowly, would be revealed as far more complex than they want to admit it is.

No state and no government ever has reached a satisfactory solution of the unemployment insurance problem. There are numerous questions to be answered. Unemployment insurance happens at the moment to have wide popular support, but no reasonable person claims it is an unmitigated benefit. Even if the principle were flawless, it could be marred by bad legislation. Many would call the hastily enacted and never debated federal act a decidedly bad piece of coercive legislation. Grave doubts of the act's constitutionality are held by persons who thoroughly believe in the rightness of unemployment insurance.

Ohio is proud of its leadership in social security legislation. At the outset of the senate committee's hearings on unemployment insurance, it would be a good thing to remember that the state's position of leadership may be threatened more directly by haste than by deliberation. If unemployment insurance is worth considering, it is worth considering carefully and critically. There is virtually no dependable information on the subject. Consequently, Ohio must think through for itself as completely as possible the whole momentous question. There never has been a subject considered by the legislature less adaptable to the hurry method which has given Americans so many half-baked and sloppy laws during the last few years.

We are beginning to believe Borah is President Roosevelt's right-hand man.—Atchison Globe.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 9.—That lower tip of Manhattan known as Battery Park erupts a noon-time activity that suggests circus day in Pomeroy, O. There are balloon sellers, ice cream, hot peanuts and lemonade vendors and hawkers of emblem flags.

Pitch men set up tripods and even the shell and pea game artists whisper come-on subtleties. Newsboys make a killing with noon editions. For two hours the spirit of a usually bleak area takes on the whoop-la of the carnival. Somerset Maugham likened it to Trafalgar Square.

The overflow is caused by the suddenly released army of stenographers and clerks from the Wall Street section who occupy the benches and grass plots for luncheon spreads and use the walks for a promenade. Office boys play ball, leapfrog and otherwise skylark.

And even great figures, such as the late George Baker, in finance take a turn or so there. Just as quickly as it erupts, it dries up and back seep the human flotsam who sit so immobile, looking constantly to sea. Also those pathetic old women who have no place to go.

New York's oldest active newspaper woman is Mrs. Laura Comstock Dunlap, who up until its sale, was on the Globe. At 89 she has been for three years teaching journalism to unemployed young people. The same course is served by mail to aspiring students in the state prison at Dannemora. Mrs. Dunlap also wrote a book on courtesy that is a text book in metropolitan schools. She takes a lively interest in modern journalism and often turns in a bang-up Sunday feature story.

While it is still possible for the free lance to dispose of a newspaper feature story now and then, the field is rough going. It used to be an alert reporter could double his pay with a Sunday yarn. In those days the Sun, Herald and World were ready markets. Paying as high as $75 for an especially readable yarn with pictures. I remember Charlie Somerville causing a bit of eye-bulging in an under Brooklyn Bridge lazzaretto one afternoon by flashing three checks totaling slightly more than $150. Clear and above his salary on The World.

In these opulent days of enormous radio contracts on the side, the $200-a-week newspaper writer creates no splash whatever among his fellows. But that figure was once a goal, when writing was strictly a writing game, and syndication unknown, that few achieved. I know but two who attained that mark and it was accomplished, of course, by outside writing along with the regular chore. Irvin Cobb, I believe, obtained it just before he quit Park Row to write solely for the magazines. So did Bert Treharne.

This is a tip-top way to start an argument. A man who knows much of feminine beauty from an artistic standpoint writes: "The most beautiful women in the United States are in Los Angeles, Houston and Salt Lake City. The better dressed women are in Washington, D. C." Flo Ziegfeld, when reigning supreme as a beauty picker, would always see girls from the state of Texas, the cities of San Francisco and Portland. Three of his great beauties—who they were escapes me—came from those localities. O, yes, Jessie Reed came from Texas.

Obvious cartoon idea should President Roosevelt be defeated: A dejected drawing of him under the caption: "The Forgotten Man!"

Thingumabobs: K. C. B.'s daughter Betsy is writing a New York theatrical column for Hollywood. . . . Frank Menke, sports authority, was once the tiddler-dewik champion of his county. . . . David Belasco had $3 in assets when he signed Mrs. Leslie Carter and started his fortune. . . . William Gillette has told friends he expects to revive "Sherlock Holmes" at 90. . . . Bob Wagner is Charlie Chaplin's best friend and severest critic. . . . David Sarnoff, next to Will Hays, is New York's most prodigious long distance telephone user. . . .

One of those sartorially unblemished silver-haired Tories swung jauntily out of the Racquet club entrance this evening. A huge car, shinningly luxurious, purred up to him with precise timing. He stepped in and shot away. And Lois Long, noting it all from the sidelines, exclaimed: "That's the trouble with this country—everything going Communist."

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Infantile Paralysis

MANY A PARENT has been broken-hearted by reason of the death of a beloved child. The devastating effects of infantile paralysis are even worse in some instances, it seems to me than would be death itself. Invalidism even in mild form is a dreadful affliction, but when it takes on all the horrors of the paralysis frequently associated with this disease, it is terrible indeed.

Looking back to my childhood I recall a few playmates who had been victims of infantile paralysis. As they limped and struggled in their efforts of locomotion, my young mind was bewildered. I could not understand how such a thing could be. As I grew older and came in contact with others who were similarly disabled, my sympathies were more and more aroused. When I became a physician and had to deal with these cases, I mourned that the profession had not found ways of controlling the disease and averting its disastrous consequences.

A turn of the wheel of fate made me health commissioner of New York City. I went into that office just as the community had suffered the devastating effects of a virulent epidemic of infantile paralysis. Every parent was frightened and little children were scared by reason of the fear reflected to them from the minds of their parents.

Recalls Incident

I can recall during that time taking an automobile trip with my young son. We were stopped by armed guards and told that children were not permitted to go that way. My boy trembled to think that he was somehow or other a menace to the welfare of society. He begged that we might go home where he could be safe and undisturbed.

No doubt these methods of shotgun quarantine were more or less absurd. Even now we do not know enough about the cause of infantile paralysis to be fully informed as to what should be done to protect against it.

I am glad to say, however, that great progress has been made in the care of these little patients. Though there are unsolved problems as to the transmission of the disease, the medical profession has learned how to deal with it, how to speed the child toward quick recovery. It is the opinion of the medical profession that the child thus attacked should be taken immediately to the hospital. There he can have all the facilities necessary for his care.

Student farmer

One of the most novel student aid programs yet attempted, a student farm sponsored by Louisiana State university at Baton Rouge, is now taking shape as the 675 acres allotted the project are being cleared and drained. Success of the project on an experimental scale during the past two years is resulting in extension of the plan this fall to include 1,000 freshmen who will be employed on the farm and receive classroom training at the same time. It is expected that the project will enable the farm-students to go through their first year without outside financial help. Each youth will be given a cash allowance of about $2 a week and will be credited by the university with the balance due him, such obligations as tuition, books, lodging and meals to come out of his credit balance. The 1,000 youths will be divided into two groups of 500, one to attend night classes and work in the fields during the first semester, and vice versa the second semester, the entire group completing their first year work by attending summer school.

MOISTURE CONTROL

The most important single attribute of cigarettes, other than the tobacco itself, is moisture content. To its influence we owe the ability to make uniform cigarettes, to control combustion, and to govern quality of smoke. Excessive moisture interferes with proper combustion, and makes cigarette smoke unpalatable. Insufficient moisture permits dry, dusty cigarette smoke to impinge upon the delicate mucous membrane of the smoker.

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown" runs the adage, but the tiny head of Lance Haugwitz-Reventlow, son of Count and Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow and heir to the Woolworth millions of his mother, the former Barbara Hutton, seemed to rest most easily when the cameraman snapped him "on tour" in London's Hyde park.

Plans were discussed for the joint guest night on May 18, when the Leornians will meet with the Book club. An interesting program is planned, with songs by Miss Betty Harold, costume and interpretive singing, as a feature. The meeting will open with a dinner, the place for which will be announced at a later date.

Miss Mary Campbell reviewed "Selected Poems of Edwin A. Robinson" and Mrs. E. A. Coles had a paper on "The Scope of Our Library Service" for the program last night. Musical entertainment consisted of trumpet and drum arrangements by Leo Copcia and little son; clarinet duet, "Dream of the Shepherds," by Jean Auld and Jean Kingsley, accompanied by Meta McCave. Mrs. Holland Cameron had charge of a novel game which consisted of reading of paragraphs from a story which had been divided and given to each member.

After the meeting, Mrs. Cameron, retiring president, entertained members at a two-course lunch at the Spanish Tavern.

Mrs. Fehr Addresses Mission Unit

Mrs. J. A. Fehr, guest speaker, talked on "The American Indian" during the meeting of the Women's Missionary society off the Presbyterian church in the chapel yesterday.

Mrs. Gertrude Stewart led the devotions and Mrs. V. R. Martin offered a vocal selection, "There Is a Green Hill Far Away." Several members of the group who attended the meeting of the Mahoning Presbyterian in Niles a short time ago, gave reports of the conference. Tea was served at 5:30 p. m., by a committee in charge of Mrs. C. S. Carr, chairman.

Past Noble Grands Have Dinner

Past Noble Grands association of home lodge No. 110, Daughters of Rebekah, opened their meeting at the I. O. O. F. hall last night with a casserole dinner at 6:30, the meeting and program following.

Cleveland To Have Public Hearing On Changing Old Time

CLEVELAND, April 9.—Public hearing on daylight saving time will be held by the legislative committee of the Cleveland city council under a resolution voted last night 31 to 1.

Most of the councilmen are opposed to adopting daylight saving time but decided, in the words of Councilman Herman Finkle, "there should be a hearing at least, because there is some interest." Various ballots have shown industrial workers opposed to any change and office workers favoring it.

DOVER, April 9.—Walter Eckenrode, 22, and Charles Shaw, 23, of Massillon, were in critical condition today in Union hospital here from burns received yesterday when a can of powder exploded in a shanty at a coal stripping mine operated by the Columbia Fire Brick company.

Martin, Dunnell and Delmar Malter, two other mine employees, rescued the injured pair from the burning shack.

Company officials said the cause of the blast was not known.

FIRE DESTROYS FALLEN LINER

concerning the disaster will be taken in Pittsburgh tomorrow.

Four probes under way. The commerce department inquiry was only one of four under way. TWA officials conducted their own investigation. The U. S. senate's air safety committee directed an inquiry and Coroner S. A. Baltz of Fayette county assembled a jury, which recessed after organizing.

Dr. Baltz said he will make no attempt to question the three survivors until their condition improves, all are expected to recover. They are Miss Granger, who although hurt stumbled miles through the forest to tell of the crash; C. C. Challinor of Cleveland, and Mrs. Hilda Ellenstein, wife of the mayor of Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Ellenstein is the most critically injured but physicians reported she rallied after a second blood transfusion yesterday. Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper announced a check of radio beacons at Pittsburgh showed them in operation. The beams are constant radio messages which inform pilots whether they are on the course, or to the right or left.

Probe Housewife And Lover's Plot Of Wrecking Train

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 9.—Escambia county authorities today dug deeper into an alleged plot by an attractive, 40-year-old housewife and her lover to wreck a railroad train on which the woman's husband was the engineer, so they might collect his $3,000 life insurance and be free to marry.

The principals, Mrs. W. V. Vann of Perry Pass and Earl Travis of Castleberry, Ala., steadfastly denied the conspiracy charges leveled against them by Sheriff H. E. Gandy, Travis, a carpenter who is several years younger than Mrs. Vann, was quoted by the sheriff as admitting an affair with the engineer's wife but declaring "that's no crime."

The husband, 70 years old, reported two recent attempts to wreck his train but repeatedly declared his belief that "my wife is innocent."

Her bond was tentatively set at $5,000 and the husband said he would try to furnish it.

FDR HAPPY AS HE GOES HOME

Gives Some Thought To Tornado Disaster In South

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, April 9.—Homeward bound from an invigorating vacation cruise, President Roosevelt gave thoughts today again to the tornado disaster in the southeast as he traveled close to the stricken area.

He is spending part of today at his Warm Springs, Ga., home which is not far from the belt of tornado devastation. Late today on the way to the white house he will move through some of the zone. It is a happy, sun-tanned president who is returning to the white house tomorrow. Going ashore yesterday afternoon for the first time in his sixteen days cruise, he was in genial mood as he told of good fishing luck.

Seem Quiet. He remarked to newspapermen that things seemed more quiet just now than at any time for a long while.

Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied from Port Everglades where he landed to Jacksonville by Governor Sholtz of Florida and James A. Moffett. Moffett has been mentioned as a possible assistant secretary of the navy succeeding the late Henry Roosevelt. Governor Sholtz also has been spoken of frequently for high federal office. Both men are close friends of the president.

The president will reach the white house early tomorrow afternoon. He is expected to lend efforts toward early adjournment of congress.

Next Monday he goes to Baltimore to speak for the first time in several weeks and later in the month he will deliver an address in New York.

It's Two Bits More, But Movies Coome Back To Lewisburg

URBANA, April 9.—Merchants of nearby North Lewisburg were all set today to resume weekly movie showings in the town hall—but it'll cost them 25 cents more a week. Mayor L. B. Spain ousted the merchants' show two weeks ago in favor of a medicine show, which paid $15 rental. The merchants had been paying $3 weekly.

The mayor advised the merchants yesterday they could move the show, held in a garage for two weeks, back into the town hall by paying the $3 and a permit fee of 25 cents in advance.

The two-bit fee was something new.

LISBON, April 9.—Work has been resumed on the reconstruction of the East Chestnut street highway, a WPA project that has been dormant for several months due to weather conditions.

A force of 26 men is being employed. Completion of the project will take at least four weeks, providing, however, weather does not interrupt progress.

RELIEF DEBATE FLAMING AGAIN

Hopkins To Testify Before House Sub-Committee Today

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, April 9.—The ever-present relief controversy today flared again, dividing interest with new debate over rural electrification and an attempt to sink the administration's tax program.

As Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, prepared to go before a house sub-committee to testify for the second day on President Roosevelt's request for a $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation for next year, Stephen Rausenbush loosed an attack on what he called "politics in relief."

Presents Charges. Rausenbush, former chief investigator for the senate municipalities committee, said he had laid before Hopkins charges that the Pennsylvania works progress administrator, Edward N. Jones, was using relief funds "for political purposes."

Accusing Hopkins of ignoring the charges, Rausenbush threatened to lay them before a senate committee. Gist of the accusations was that Jones distributed, in the pay envelopes of WPA workers, a mimeographed statement attacking Rausenbush and calling him a "political goliath" and "would-be political boss."

While the senate proceeded with the impeachment trial of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida, the house turned to consideration of the Norris rural electrification bill.

Designed to lay out $420,000,000 in the next 10 years to finance the electrification of farms, the bill recently passed the senate.

Would Scrap Plan. Assembling again to consider modifications in the $799,000,000 program, Democrats on the house ways and means committee faced an attempt by Rep. Lamneck (D., Ohio) to scrap the plan.

In place of the program, featured by a new type tax on corporation income graduated according to the percentage of undistributed profits, Lamneck would substitute a flat 20 to 22 per cent levy on the income.

Expressing gratification over their victory in the house, backers of the Kerr tobacco compact bill predicted that it soon would pass the senate. The bill would give consent to agreements among states to regulate the production of tobacco.

Grade-Crossing Bill Will Be Considered

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The rules committee today gave right-of-way to the house floor for a $440,000,000 highway and grade-crossing authorization bill.

The measure, which probably will be considered next week, continues with slight modifications the current Hayden-Cartwright law which expires at the end of the next fiscal year.

It authorizes $125,000,000 for each of the years ending June 30, 1938 and 1939, to be matched on a 50-50 basis by the states, for federal-aid highways, including those in parks.

Report Still Birth Of 19-Pound Infant At New Middleton

YOUNGSTOWN, April 9.—Obstetricians disclosed today the still birth of a 19-pound daughter to Mrs. H. B. Grant, Negro, at nearby New Middleton last Sunday.

The physicians said they took clinical measurements of the dead infant for medical journals. Mrs. Grant, 42, and weighing more than 200 pounds, is making a satisfactory recovery. The attending physician said he was called too late to take her to a hospital. He gave her an anesthetic and delivered the infant in the Grants' home.

The physician carried a spring scale which weighed only up to 15 pounds. When the baby's weight carried the indicator to its limit, he took the body to a store nearby where an accurate balance scale showed its weight 19 pounds.

Mrs. Grant has had seven other children. The first six are living. The seventh was born dead due to its size.

NEW DEAL PROBE STARTED BY GOP

Republican Committee Hires Experts To Make Analysis

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, said today it had engaged 50 professors and other experts to make a "complete analysis of what the New Deal has done to the country in three years."

Dr. O. G. Saxton of Yale university, who wears two academic keys on his watch chain and who studied under Professor Felix Frankfurter at Harvard, heads the new "research" division. Frankfurter has been a leading New Deal adviser.

"The division is not a 'brain trust' in the sense of the small group of personal advisers named by President Roosevelt," Fletcher said in a statement.

Research Staff

"This is a research staff, not a group of politically ambitious college professors with pre-conceived ideas who look forward to getting on the federal payroll in the hope they can reform the universe."

Fletcher told reporters that facts assembled by the new division would not be suppressed if they were found favorable to the New Deal. At another point in the conference, however, he said if any of the reports were not "timely, they would not be made public."

Saxton said he thought "we can logically prove that many of the New Deal activities have impeded rather than forwarded recovery."

On the other hand, he said, there were many New Deal activities that his division could approve. He did not name them.

LEAGUE APPEALS POISON GAS USE

Committee Adopts Suggestion of Sir Anthony Eden

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY, Copyright, 1936, The Associated Press

GENEVA, April 9.—The committee of thirteen of the league of nations decided today to send a supreme appeal to Italy and Ethiopia to abstain from the use of poison gas in the East African war.

The decision, made upon the recommendation of British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, was approved without passing upon allegations that Italy already has used gas in her Ethiopian invasion.

The committee action urges the two governments to observe the provisions of the anti-gas convention and followed an appeal by Eden to Italy not to use poison gas against Ethiopia.

Makes Appeal. He made his appeal shortly after French ministers informed him that if Germany should continue its violation of treaties through erecting fortifications along the Rhine, France reserved the right to take steps she felt the situation justified.

The British cabinet minister suggested that, in order to make the league's attitude impartial, both Italy and Ethiopia gave pledges not to resort to the use of gas, which is prohibited in warfare under international treaties.

In the course of his speech, Eden remarked that when armies in the field or aviators used poison gas it was always with the approval of their high command, thereby insinuating that Premier Mussolini's general staff authorized the use of gas.

Eden declared it was known that, since the beginning of hostilities, Italy had shipped 259 tons of poison gas through the Suez canal.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeanette Young Norton

RECIPES THAT contain cereals as a basic ingredient are always in demand, and, of course, especially during Lent. So we have prepared for you some very new recipes.

There's apricot toastie scallop, as nice a sweet as any we have met with. Arrange two cups of drained, canned apricots in shallow baking dish and add half cup apricot juice and three tablespoons lemon juice. Combine three cups toastie type cereal, four tablespoons melted butter and four tablespoons sugar tossing lightly to mix. Sprinkle over apricots. Bake in hot oven for 10 minutes or until browned.

Toastie Pecan Muffins
Now for a recipe that will yield 16 toastie pecan muffins. Sift one cup sifted flour once, add two and a half teaspoons baking powder, quarter teaspoon salt and two tablespoons sugar, and sift again. Crush one cup toastie type cereal, four tablespoons melted butter and four tablespoons sugar tossing lightly to mix. Sprinkle over apricots. Bake in hot oven for 10 minutes or until browned.

For three dozen walnut cocorons, beat three egg whites with half teaspoon salt until foamy throughout; add one firmly-pocked cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons at the time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Add half teaspoon vanilla. Fold in two cups toasties, one cup shredded coconut and one cup broken walnut meats. Drop from teaspoon on ungreased heavy paper. Bake in slow oven 20 minutes or until delicately browned.

Inspect Home

COLUMBUS, April 9.—Mrs. Margaret Allman, state welfare director, and Mrs. Martin L. Davey, wife of the governor, were scheduled to go to Sandusky today to inspect the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' home, where a state investigation of the administration is under way.

Today's Pattern

EASY MAKING AND GOOD TIMES

Pattern 2766

See this new Anne Adams fashion? Isn't it almost pretty enough to pluck right off the page? You'll want to do just that when you realize those caplet sleeves are the coolest, comfiest kind of all for summer and warm weather and are cut in one with the prettily pointed yokes, to save you time and give you the new, broad-shouldered effect. Then follow the seaming right down from yoke to hem, and you'll catch sight of two easy pleats which give your skirt a pretty swish. You will find it's a frock you can run up in a very short time, and when finished, you're ready to go calling, or out for luncheon, tea or dinner. Equally nice is a printed crepe, batiste or voile.

Pattern 2766 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3½ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (cents preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size. Send for your copy of our Anne Adams Pattern Book! You'll like its foresighted advice on the latest patterns, fabrics, accessories, and fashion trends. You'll like the way it helps you plan a whole smart wardrobe. You'll like its slenderizing styles, its delightful patterns for misses and children. A book that's brimming with good ideas. Send for it today. Price of book, 15 cents. Book and a pattern together, 25 cents.

Address orders to The Salem News Pattern Department, 243 W. 17th St., New York, N. Y.

Will Leave Akron

AKRON, April 9.—The General Tire & Rubber Co. is making plans for a mechanical rubber goods plant outside Akron, said President William O'Neill last night. He did not indicate where the plant would be located, but said: "We have found it impractical to make mechanical rubber goods in a high wage factory like an Akron plant."

Wrestling Results

Boyle, Mass. — Nick Lutz, 220, California, defeated Emil Dusek, 215, Omaha, on foul.

Theater Attractions

Warner Baxter and Ann Loring, who may be seen in "Robin Hood of El Dorado," showing at the State theater Friday and Saturday.

Warner Baxter, star of the first outdoor talkie made, "In Old Arizona," again is seen in the same type of role, in "Robin Hood of El Dorado," showing at the State theater Friday and Saturday. Others playing with Baxter are Ann Loring, Margo, Bruce Cabot, Eric Linden, Edgar Kennedy and Harvey Stephens.

Gold and Ranch Life

This is a simple story of early California ranch life and barbarous Americans who entered during the gold rush. Baxter is seen as Joaquin, a dashing peon, working on a big ranch. He loves a beautiful Spanish girl, daughter of another peon, Margo. The Spanish dancer who entered the movies two years ago, plays Rosita, loved by Joaquin. These two marry and move to a small farm to live a happy and peaceful life. On day four American gold miners invade their place, and discover there is gold on the land. They beat Joaquin and attack his wife, Rosita, dies and Joaquin vows vengeance on them.

Driven to banditry, he seeks the four Americans and kills each one of them. Huge rewards are offered for his capture. To escape he goes to the farm of his older brother and lives for awhile happy and peaceful. But his happiness is again interrupted by some brutal Americans who get drunk, wrongly accuse Joaquin's brother of stealing a mule. They hang him and beat Joaquin.

Again seeking revenge, the peon joins a band of desperadoes led by "Three-Fingered Jack." This begins a life of banditry and adventure. Joaquin organizes the band into a powerful army bent on vengeance.

Fall In Love
Ann Loring playing a daughter of a kindly Spaniard who was brutally murdered by Americans, joins Joaquin's outlaw band. These two fall in love with each other but their life together is short. They eventually have to pay for the lives they have taken in their mad fight for vengeance.

NOT long ago I was like some friends I have... low in spirits... run-down... out of sorts... tired easily and looked terrible. I knew I had no serious organic trouble so I reasoned sensibly... as my experience has since proven... that work, worry, colds and whatnot had just worn me down.

The confidence mother has always had in S.S.S. Tonic... which is still her stand-by when she feels run-down... convinced me I ought to try this Treatment... I started a course... the color began to come back to my skin... I felt better... I no longer tired easily and soon I felt that those red-blood-cells were back to so-called fighting strength... it is great to feel strong again and like my old self. © S.S.S. Co.

Village, With Population of 748, May Go Into Municipal Bankruptcy

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, April 10.—The village of nearby Brooklyn, with a debt of a million dollars and a population of 748, wants to go into municipal bankruptcy.

While the mayor, the marshal, the village council and other municipal officers serve without pay, a bondholders protective committee and village officers have reached a tentative agreement to take advantage of the so-called municipal debt readjustment act.

Brooklyn's plight, said Byron D. Kuth, village solicitor, is simply a matter of punctured real estate allocation boom. Special assessment bonds were issued several years ago to improve newly plotted real estate.

Streets Without Houses
After the improvements were made, there was no further development. The village has miles of fine streets without a house in sight.

With a bonded indebtedness of $1,119,068, the village is in the position of having to use all its taxes for debt service, leaving nothing for operating expenses. The tax valuation is $5,068,689.

The solution now sought, through negotiations with bondholders under the federal act, is to exchange existing bonds for 30-year bonds dated June 1, 1936, subject to call on any interest bearing date.

They would pay two per cent interest for the first five years, three per cent for the next five, four per cent for the next five and five per cent thereafter until maturity.

Would Retire Bonds
Wherever $5,000 becomes available in the sinking fund, above the next interest installment, it would be used to retire the refunding bonds.

William Howell, a Lakewood attorney, recently filed an injunction suit against the bondholders' committee, seeking to prevent payments on all improvement bonds issued in 1930 or later, until $185,000 worth of bonds issued in 1929 are paid.

He contended the bonds issued since 1929 were illegal, on the ground that the village had exhausted its taxing power at that time.

Kuth declared the legality of the bonds was established definitely in the recent decision of the supreme court of Ohio, which ordered the village to apply all its tax revenues to debt service.

The solicitor also asserted the law provided the legality of a bond could not be challenged later than one year after issuance.

Says Dayton Power Company Violating Rights of Project

HILLSBORO, April 9.—J. E. Garrettson, manager of an inter-county rural electrification project, charged workmen of the Dayton Power and Light Company with encroaching on rights granted the cooperative today as they started construction of a power line on the W. D. Thornberg farm.

Garrettson said he telegraphed the rural electrification administration in Washington for advice on obtaining an injunction against the utility. Two photographers snapped pictures of the Power and Light firm's workmen as they erected poles, and Garrettson said he would forward the pictures to Washington as evidence of the encroachment.

He asserted the Power and Light company was constructing an auxiliary line between New Vienna and Highland along a highway where the cooperative organization had obtained sole rights of way from farmers on both sides of the road. The project headed by Garrettson proposes construction of electric lines to serve 2,200 farms in Highland, Clinton, Fayette, Ross, and Pike counties.

Betting Commissioners Report Heavy Play For Brevity And Hollywood

odds On Brevity Reduced Sharply Following His Victory In the Florida Derby; Quotations Of Hollywood Decline Gradually

NEW YORK, April 9.—The betting commissioners are reporting J. E. Widener's Brevity at 13 to 5 and holding Hal Price Headley's Hollywood at 4 to 1 to take the Kentucky Derby, but their trainers declare the odds far too short.

The 3-1 shot you can't name a better horse, declared Pete Coyne, who trained with Brevity at Louisville yesterday.

Hollywood is too short at those odds, said 26-year-old Duval, who has watched his uncle's horse work out at Belmont park.

Regardless of the odds, Tom Yawkey, eastern bookmaker, reports heavy play on the two colts. Each dominate the future book odds on Hollywood have declined gradually as reports of his condition come from the stable.

Hold Positions
Barring a sensational race by the Bomber stable's Grand Slam on the other derby eligible in the week-end stakes at Havre de Grace, April 18, Brevity and Hollywood almost are certain to hold their positions, at least until the arrival of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica, April 25.

Along with the two favorites, says the receiving a strong bet on William Woodward's Grand Slam, which can be had at 20 to 1. The same odds are quoted on Grand Slam, which until recently was not regarded on par with Bradley's Ben Joli, his best year-old of 1935, which is held at 30-1.

Grand Slam and Willis Sharp, owner's Ned Reigh are the third choice in Shaw's book at 10-1. At 20-1 are C. B. Shaffer's Stream and Marshall Field's Mangel.

Haynes Wants To Box Louis
Manager Says There Is No Reason Why Joe Shouldn't Sign

(By Brush-Moore Leased Wire)
PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—LeRoy Haynes, Negro heavyweight who catapulted himself into international prominence by cutting down Primo Carnera in three quick rounds, is eager for a bout with Joe Louis.

This was revealed by the Philadelphia boxer's manager, Pete Moran, who announced his fighter first will take a three-weeks trip to South Bend, Ind., and Los Angeles to visit relatives, but will do no fighting on the way.

"Challenging James J. Braddock for the title at this time would gain us nothing, I know," Moran said. "But there is no reason why Louis should not be forced into a match with Haynes."

After the victory over Carnera, sports writers were quick to point out Haynes had stopped the big Italian in about half the time the feat was done by Louis and Max Baer, the dethroned heavyweight king. It was also the local boy's fifth successive knockout.

Haynes even has been invited to tour England, Moran said, revealing that Patrick Murphy, sports writer of London, called Moran via trans-Atlantic telephone after the Carnera bout.

The manager said: "Murphy is associated with Jeff Dickson in the boxing promotion field. However, we're not thinking about going abroad just yet."

BEEES MAY PLACE FARM IN CANTON

Would Give Mid-Atlantic A nEight-Club League For This Season

ZANESVILLE, April 9.—Officials of seven clubs of the Mid-Atlantic baseball league had hopes today that the Boston National league club would establish a farm in Canton, giving them an eight-club loop this season.

At a meeting here last night the seven posted $900 forfeits each and planned to go into session again Monday at Canton to draw up a six or eight-club schedule. The season probably will start May 7.

Decision Expected
A decision on the Boston possibility, was expected within two or three days. Joe Carr, minor league promotional director of Columbus, told President Elmer Daily of the Mid-Atlantic that he had been in touch with Boston officials yesterday and that they were favorably inclined toward establishing a farm club in Canton.

Discussion indicated that if this possibility fell through the Mid-Atlantic might consider one-third of the cost of financing a Canton club, or readmitting Beckley, W. Va., or dropping Johnstown, Pa., to make a six-club league.

The Ohio State League, a Class D organization, is awaiting the outcome of the Canton situation. Harry Smith, president of the new league, said he believed it probable Canton would be in Mid-Atlantic and that the Ohio State loop would go on with six clubs. Daily left for Canton after the meeting adjourned.

FRENCH TENNIS TEAM IN DOUBT

Juggling of Players Is Likely Procedure In Zone Competition

(By United Press)
PARIS.—With the Davis Cup season approaching, French tennis officials are beginning to be preoccupied by the composition of this year's team.

Last year, France's Davis Cup team consisted of frail Christian Boususs and cocky Andre Merlin in the singles and the colorful veteran Jean Borotra and left-handed Marcel Bernard in the doubles. On that occasion France's hopes were killed quickly. France had the misfortune to draw Australia as a first-round opponent.

Fortune smiled upon France in the draw this year. China was drawn in the first round, and the victor of the Monaco-Switzerland meeting in the second, thus virtually assuring the Gauls of opposing Czechoslovakia in the European semi-finals.

France's team has not been selected, nor will there be any rush to appoint a permanent official team from the beginning. Weak first and second opponents will give the French plenty of opportunity to experiment before selecting the strongest possible team to confront the Czechs.

Young Hopes Included
The squad probably will consist of Boususs, Borotra, Bernard and a group of young hopes headed by 19-year-old Bernard Destreanne, and including Yvon Petra, Pierre Pelizzia and Jacques Jamin. Merlin is already spoken of in the past tense and most likely will not be included in the squad.

Boususs and Borotra are the only two players sure of their places and they will form the nucleus of the new team. Top-ranking Boususs will get one of the singles roles, while the second one may be filled by either of two players. Bernard, who ranks right behind Boususs, or Destreanne, who stands head and shoulders over all the other players of France.

On a good day, Bernard is one of the best players in the world, but he is not reliable and little is to be expected of him when the stakes are high. Because of that fact, Destreanne may get the call. Brilliant, steady, but pretentious, Destreanne, how was not ranked among the first twenty in 1934 and jumped up to fifth last year, is just about ripe for international competition.

Millionaire Owner Of Red Sox Merely Wants It Made Clear About His Purchases

"Everybody's Worrying About My Going Broke," Comments Yawkey, "And While I Appreciate Their Interest, There's Not Much Chance"

HI SCHOOL LAD BEST AT SKEET

Richard Shaughnessy, 14, Termed a "Natural" By Experts

QUINCY, Mass., April 9.—A 14-year-old Boston College High school freshman, and world's champion skeet shooter, is Richard Shaughnessy, of Dedham, Mass.

Less than two years ago, using a .16 guage shotgun, he tried skeet shooting for the first time and broke 15 out of a possible 25 clay pigeons—a good score even for an old-timer.

Since then young Shaughnessy, termed a "natural" by experts at Greater Boston Gun clubs, has progressed until recently, in a five-day shoot at the Quincy Gun club, he broke 313 consecutive pigeons, bettering the record mark of 257 held by Martin Markham of Louisville, Ky.

In the first day of the five-day competition Dick scored a 22. The next day he dropped 100 straight pigeons. The third day 125, and on the fourth and last days 50 and 16, respectively.

Before the end of the third day of this display of nerve and ability his opponents were alternately praying and cheering for the 14-year-old boy.

Prior to this his best score was 172. In the National competitions at Cleveland last year, Dick, then only 13, won four trophies and in one event was the only Massachusetts contestant to place.

Thus has the Old Bay state returned to its rightful place in the skeet shooting world, for it was here about 10 years ago that the game originated, an offshoot of the older trapshooting.

Other members of the Shaughnessy family addicted to the sport are his father, manager of a Boston sporting goods store, and his older brother, Bob, but neither can compare with the champion of the family.

"DAUGHTERS OF VENUS"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

"We really must be going," he said, echoing Juliet. "You need rest."

"Nonsense, you two. I'm tougher than the both of you! It's something else besides business that's in your heads."

An uncomfortable silence settled in the perfumed room.

The witch-like little figure, propped up in its mountain of cushions, gave them both a wordless, jeering smile. It was an attitude of mind emanating from Madame Hubert that vaguely embarrassed Juliet.

"For my part, I'm going straight home and to bed," said O'Hara quickly.

"How plous you've become!" said Madame Hubert mockingly. "Such a beautiful young man, too. After a hard business day and your little visit here, you still have the whole night before you—for love. Too bad you aren't a Frenchman—they know how to love."

O'Hara grinned. "Aren't you developing some new ideas, Madame?"

"Rubbish! I've always had more understanding in my little finger than you have in your whole magnificent body, O'Hara. The trouble with me is that I was never attracted. Besides, I was too busy making money."

Her eyes, bright as a wolf's, rolled toward Juliet.

"If I were in your shoes, my dear, I'd make him take me dancing at the Ambassador tonight."

"I thought you didn't want me going around with men from the Institute," said Juliet, her interest faded in this conversation.

"That was many years ago," Madame Hubert answered. "I've had a long time to think about life—and what I've missed. Take my advice, my dear, and don't let it pass you by. Is Von Guerdon still pursuing?"

"He's too busy to have funny ideas," replied Juliet.

"Good! There's no romance in Von Guerdon anyway. He has an antiseptic brain. If I were you, I wouldn't hesitate a minute. Take O'Hara, he's all temperament. Tell me, has O'Hara ever kissed you yet?"

The dry, persistent voice was plucking discordantly on Juliet's mind. The Mandarin robe was open a little, disclosing the hollows in the Madame's neck; there were shadows on her face, giving it an expression of hawkish cruelty.

"Does it matter?" Juliet asked, definitely rising to leave.

Without looking at O'Hara, she knew that he was uncomfortable too. If, in truth, they had never been in each other's arms, the question would not have struck home so sharply.

"It's no good denying it," said Madame Hubert. "I can tell by O'Hara's face. He's flushing."

"Madame, you are an evil-minded old devil," O'Hara said with facetious severity, which was the best defense. "I swear I believe you spend your time hatching up sinful ideas about your lofty-minded employees. You were probably run out of France for corrupting the morals of Paris. Juliet, here, belongs to the younger generation and they know as little of sin as they do of gin. I'm going to get her out of this house before you put an indelible scar on her childish mind."

When they left, Madame Hubert was cackling with the kind of laughter that gave Juliet a prickling sensation at the roots of her hair.

Speeding home in O'Hara's roadster, she ran the window down and let the fresh night air blow keenly across her face.

Day by day she had been seeing a great deal of O'Hara and was finding herself more and more at ease in his presence, but the remembrance of this, and other evenings at Madame Hubert's stuck like a burr in her mind.

For the first time, she decided to discuss it with O'Hara.

"Oh, don't pay any attention to her," he advised. "What if her conversation does get a little raw?"

After all, Juliet, we're not exactly lilies ourselves.

"I know—but it rubs me the wrong way," said Juliet. "Why does she talk that way?"

"For her own amusement." She had a pretty acid life and she doesn't have much left except what's in her head. I mean, if we understood people better we might pity them more. No, what you resent is the truth in what she said.

"The truth?"

"Yes, the truth. She was probably right. Here we are, perfectly free and missing all the joy of being in love. You ought to realize, Juliet, that we're both leading damn lonely lives. And we might be in Paradise. That's the worst of it. It's right in our reach and we content ourselves with just the empty husks of life. Cowardly, isn't it?"

When O'Hara let Juliet out in front of her apartment house, they shook hands before parting. She could tell by his eyes that passion lay just beneath the surface, that he wanted to kiss her.

Poor chap! If love and passion were beautiful, then the opposite—frustration—must be ugly and painful. But kindness was the only balm Juliet had available.

"Good-night, O'Hara—you're a nice person and I like you lots and lots and lots."

But she felt like a cheat when she said it.

The lights in the lobby had been dimmed when Juliet entered, and she scarcely noticed the man sitting on a settee in the shade. He rose and she saw it was Von Guerdon.

What under the sun, she wondered, did he mean by calling at this late hour?

Instinctively, she hoped it had something to do with an emergency at the Institute. She was tired and in no mood to fend off any more masculine emotions.

"Forgive me for coming around," Von Guerdon said, with the habitual inclination of his body that suggested a bow. "I was restless and I thought I might see you for a few moments."

She smiled wanly. "I'm so tired and so sorry," she said softly.

"I know you're under a strain," he said in a soothing voice. "My car's outside. Would you like to drive with me for a half hour? It will refresh you."

What insistent creatures, men, thought Juliet. "But it's so late."

"Then let me come up to your apartment and sit quietly with you for a while," he proposed. "I've been working so long and so hard I need a little consolation. Am I asking too much?"

She saw him through her weary eyes as a charming man, undeniably attractive, even though fatigue had given him haggard lines she had never noticed before.

There was a grace about his tall, slender figure that suited some obscure aesthetic sensibility. If there had ever been any arrogance about him, it was not perceptible now. His whole attitude was tired.

Mother's Friend

Lessens the pain

A small mysterious ache turned over in her heart.

"Come on up," she said. We'll have a cup of hot tea and then you must go."

In the living room she turned on the light on one low lamp and the mellow illumination softened all the angles and slants of the modern furnishings. One of the long windows was open and she closed it.

"Let me have your coat—and sit down," she said. "I'll fix the tea right away. Would you like some little cakes?"

"No, thanks. Just the tea. Let me help you."

"Don't bother."

But he followed her to the glistening kitchen, leaned watchfully against the doorway while she put on the kettle.

"Where's Katie?"

"Asleep. I just closed the door of her room."

Von Guerdon lit a cigarette and exhaled slowly.

"I wonder if you haven't made a mistake about that girl," he said. "Your motive is splendid, of course, but is she the sort you ought to have in your home?"

"She's better off here than she'd be in the streets," Juliet told him succinctly.

"I'm not thinking of her—I'm thinking of you."

"Oh, I'm not afraid of getting damaged. And I really need a sort of maid. Poor little devil, she never had kindness in her life."

"Well, I certainly hope you civilize her," Von Guerdon said. "She's not really bad. Remarkable how fond she is of O'Hara, isn't it?"

"That's because he was kind to her. I'm going to have him up some time and let her visit with him. She thinks he's a sort of god. If he wanted her to be educated I think she'd study her head off."

But there's more to the story. Concrete walks reduce pedestrian accidents; protect against costly damage suits. Their moderate first cost, durability and freedom from repairs make them cheaper, in the long run, than walks made of any other materials.

"That's true," said Von Guerdon, and then he added casually as though he were joking. "And how is my rival getting along? I scarcely see you at all these days, but you seem to spend a lot of time with him."

Having asked the question that was uppermost in his mind, he waited in silence for his answer. Juliet, busy with the tea things, was silent until they were back in the living room and comfortably settled with their steaming cups.

"O'Hara? He's handling the new business beautifully—but I don't know."

"What is it you don't know?" asked Von Guerdon penetratingly. The tea warmed Juliet, stimulated her into a restful sense of confidence. The unpleasant thought—that burr of suggestion planted by Madame Hubert, still troubled her.

If she could not talk confidentially to Von Guerdon, she could talk to no one. Then because she was lonesome and tired and keyed up with manifold responsibilities, she revealed to him what worried her.

Von Guerdon leaned back in his chair and smiled at her.

"My dear girl," he said consolingly, "don't let these things fray your nerves. You say, Madame Hubert seeks constantly to throw you into O'Hara's company. She suggests you go dancing and that you have—in fact—a love affair, and it worries you. You feel the old woman is subtly trying to promote a romance."

"It certainly looks that way," Juliet said wearily.

Von Guerdon silently put his cup and saucer upon the low table beside his chair and stood up.

"You are quite wrong, my dear. I'm going to tell you a shocking thing. Madame Hubert is in love with O'Hara herself!"

The statement struck Juliet like a breath of good taste. "How ridiculous!" she said with a shudder.

"Nevertheless, it is quite true," Von Guerdon assured her calmly. "It is a case of vicarious affection. She imagines you in his arms and then transfers herself into your image. Any psychiatrist could explain it easily."

"It's too ugly to think about," said Juliet.

"In my profession," Von Guerdon assured her, "I cannot consider any fact of life ugly. A fact is just a fact. But to this extent I agree—it is neither a high nor beautiful manifestation of love. It's a curious thing how repressions run through underground channels until you find an outlet. I'm going to tell you something confidentially. Madame Hubert has consulted me about a complete rejuvenation for herself. I'm afraid we've another Katie Schmidt on our hands."

A pang of regret stabbed Juliet. It was all too eerie—too complicated and creepy. If Von Guerdon's words were scientifically true, then whatever Madame Hubert felt could not be described by the word love. It was something else, grotesque like a caricature.
